Commencement 2013
The names published in this commencement program include all students who earned a doctorate, educational specialist, master’s or baccalaureate degree fall quarter 2012 or winter quarter 2013, and any student who applied for a degree for spring quarter 2013 or summer quarter 2013 by the posted deadline.

Participation in commencement and inclusion in the commencement program does not guarantee official granting of a degree. The Graduate Studies Office (doctorate, educational specialist, master’s) and the Records and Registration Office (baccalaureate) verify completion of all course work before a degree is conferred. The official document verifying degree completion is the official Eastern Washington University transcript.

A History of Eastern Washington University

In 1882, the Benjamin P. Cheney Academy opened its doors to more than 200 enrolling students. A generous contribution of $10,000 from a wealthy transportation industrialist had at last fulfilled the dreams of Cheney citizens for an institute of higher learning in their community.

The academy became the State Normal School at Cheney in 1889, the same year in which Washington was given its statehood. The school was proudly designated as an institution “for the purpose of instruction of persons, both male and female, in the art of teaching the various branches that pertain to a good common school.”

By the time it became Eastern Washington College of Education in 1937, Eastern was already a fully accredited four-year degree-granting institution, offering majors in numerous subjects.

The campus grew rapidly in size and program offerings in the decades following World War II. In 1961, the name was again changed, this time to Eastern Washington State College. It was increasingly evident that the region needed professionals in many fields; in response, a wide range of undergraduate and graduate degree programs were added. Finally, in 1977, the name was changed to Eastern Washington University by the state legislature.

As a regional university, Eastern is charged with the special responsibility of meeting the undergraduate and graduate educational needs of the region's people.

To that end, program areas have grown and been redefined as the needs of the Inland Northwest have grown and changed. Master's programs have been added to meet the need for graduate-level education, and individual programs and schools have increasingly been granted accreditation by their respective oversight organizations as those programs and schools have grown and matured.

Today, Eastern students represent nearly every state in the union and more than 40 foreign countries. More than 100 different academic majors are available, offering students a wide variety of career-path options.

Nearly 600 full-time and adjunct faculty teach on the Cheney campus and at several locations throughout the state. Three-quarters of Eastern's full-time faculty members hold doctorate degrees. With a low student-to-faculty ratio, Eastern continues to stress small classes, personalized instruction and individual attention.

Perhaps even more significant than Eastern’s steady advancement during the past 130 years is the university’s expanded regional role and its evolving goals, objectives and vision of its future.

In the past decade, Eastern Washington University has become a major force in the state and the Pacific Northwest, not only in the education of more than 12,000 students a year, but in the civic, cultural, scientific and economic development of the state and region.

University Mace

The tradition of a ceremonial mace for academic institutions goes back to medieval times. Adapted in form from the ancient battle weapon used by knights, the ceremonial mace symbolized the authority of regal personages, city or shire ruling bodies and chief officers of chartered institutions.

Originally representing vested authority during all official meetings, it eventually came to be connected mainly with formal ceremonies. In academic institutions, this is usually in conjunction with an academic procession, where the mace is carried at the head of the line of march or just before the platform party.

The form of the ceremonial mace has remained fairly consistent over the centuries. Design often reflects the period of creation, especially in the elaboration of ornamentation. Gold, silver and dark wood are traditional materials.

Eastern’s mace, commissioned as a gift during the centennial year to the university by former and present members of the EWU Board of Trustees, was created by artist-craftsman Clifford Gaynard after a regionwide design competition. Its planished silver head in flowing cuplike form carries the university seal. The dark rosewood shaft with upper and medial gold-plated bosses is gently curved into the terminal silver cap at the bottom.

Although the modern design departs from the traditional straight and elaborately ornamented pattern, it retains a full effect of balance, dignity and decorum, while capturing the flowing lines typical of the eastern Washington landscape.

A permanent display case for the Eastern Washington University mace is located in the Office of the President.
The regalia worn for formal academic ceremonies such as commencements are patterned after the gowns and hoods worn regularly in the Middle Ages by scholars for warmth in unheated buildings and as distinguishing dress denoting their place in society.

A great variety of designs and colors developed over the years in the costume worn in different universities, but since 1895 in the United States, a uniform intercollegiate code of style and colors has been adhered to by most institutions.

In accordance with this code, most academic gowns are black, although some universities permit other solid colors. Occasionally, the robe color may indicate a professional distinction, such as deep purple for law or scarlet for ecclesiastical honors. Adaptations of the academic costume for high schools have sometimes used colors other than black for purely decorative purposes. Sometimes a distinguishing device on the robe or cap indicates an individual honor or a special occasion.

The baccalaureate gown is of simple cut with full, somewhat pointed sleeves. The front is closed and often no hood is worn with this gown. The mortar board head covering originated in ancient Greece, symbolizing the commitment of the scholar to a life of building. It has either a plain black tassel or one of a color indicating the subject area of the degree. The custom of shifting the cap's tassel from right to left at the time of awarding the degree is used in lieu of investing each candidate with the bachelor's hood.

The master's gown is similar to the bachelor's gown, except that the sleeves are fuller, cut square at a half-circle at the bottom and sometimes worn with the arms through a horizontal slit at elbow level.

The doctoral robe is ampler in cut with a full bell-shaped sleeve, velvet panel edging in the front and three velvet stripes on each sleeve. The velvet trim may be black or in the color appropriate to the degree. The mortar board tassel for the doctorate is gold. Some American and many foreign universities use cap forms other than the mortar board, ranging from a soft velvet beret to more elaborate fringed styles, each of which has its own historical tradition.

Hoods worn over the gowns have a velvet edging, usually in a color indicating the specific degree and a lining which is partially turned out to show the colors of the college or university which granted the degree.

Some of the colors used for tassels and velvet panels to designate the degree are:

Hattie Kauffman

As a correspondent for Good Morning America, Hattie Kauffman got the call on Feb. 24, 1989: A Boeing 747 had experienced an in-flight emergency, and her network needed her to file a report for the nightly news. Several hours later, Kauffman’s story aired on World News Tonight. Not only had she scooped the competition for ABC, but she became the first Native American to report on national news.

Originally from the Inland Northwest, Kauffman was born in Grangeville, Idaho, the fourth of seven children. Her family lived on the Nez Perce Reservation until she was three years old. They were poor, but sisters, cousins, aunts and uncles surrounded them, helping them when they needed support. Her family moved to Seattle for work, where they continued to struggle financially, but now there was no safety net. If there was social service help, they did not know about it. No meals at grandma’s house or church potlucks filled in the gaps. There was no hunting on the reservation to provide for the family. Kauffman calls those years the starvation years.

Eventually, the family’s circumstances improved, but as a teen, Kauffman struggled. When her mother, Josephine, had graduated from high school, she was the only Native American in her class, so she believed in the value of a diploma, but Kauffman scorned the “white man’s education.” At 15 years old, she dropped out of school.

Native American community leader Bernie White Bear refused to accept this. He told Kauffman that the community didn’t need any more Indian dropouts, they needed Indian graduates. Kauffman was inspired. She returned to school, skipped a grade, and graduated a year ahead of her peers. American Indian Studies at the University of Minnesota drew Kauffman to Minneapolis. While she was there, she found her love of discovery and learning nurtured. In almost every class she took, she found that she enjoyed the material to the point that she would consider majoring in it. When Kauffman learned that there was only one Native American teacher in the state, she was inspired to settle down in the college of education, where she attained a Bachelor’s of Science in education.

During her time at the University of Minnesota, she dabbled in journalism. The college radio station needed someone to cover Indian news for a five minute spot, daily. Nobody raised their hand, so the 17-year-old freshman did. Prior to the American Indian Movement’s Wounded Knee occupation in 1973, there was a lot for Kauffman to report on. Someone from the local CBS station in Minneapolis was listening and offered Kauffman a scholarship in journalism. She eventually accepted this scholarship and returned to school as a post-graduate student.

Kauffman’s big post-school break was with Seattle’s KING-TV in 1981. By 1983, she was made an anchor, and by 1987, ABC hired her as a news correspondent on Good Morning America. So she left Seattle for New York, toting her four Emmy Awards with her.

She moved to CBS in 1990 to join This Morning until 1999, when she joined The Early Show.

After 30 years in broadcast, Kauffman now writes, speaks and works to raise money for American Indian education. Her memoir, Falling into Place, will be in stores in September.
Todd McFarlane

Eastern Washington University, Image Comics, New Line Cinema and HBO all have had at least one thing in common: Todd McFarlane.

The creator of Spawn and a founder of Image Comics, McFarlane graduated from Eastern Washington University in 1984 with a bachelor's in general studies. This degree focused on art, graphic art and communications.

Originally involved in little league as a child, McFarlane pursued baseball through high school and was awarded a scholarship to play ball at EWU as a young adult. While attending school, he worked at a comic book store and also as a janitor in Showalter Hall.

Prior to graduation, McFarlane produced a backup story for the Marvel/Epic Comics book Coyote. He continued taking individual jobs, submitting artwork to comic book editors across the United States and Canada. Prior to being accepted to Marvel Comics in 1984, McFarlane also penciled work for DC Comics, including issues of Incredible Hulk, Batman Detective and Batman: Year Two.

At Marvel, McFarlane worked his way up the artist roster, bringing the Amazing Spider-Man up from its No. 9 ranking to No. 1 in only two and a half years. Marvel gave McFarlane a new monthly book title, Spider-Man, which he wrote, penciled and inked. Spider-Man #1 debuted in September 1990 and, with the sale of 2.5 million copies, set a record for best-selling comic of all time.

During a period of family leave in 1991, McFarlane considered the possibility of beginning his own publishing company. After months of discussion, he and six other Marvel artists left the company to form Image Comics.

This publishing house became a parent corporation where each artist made decisions about licensing and merchandise while independently reaping the financial rewards for those decisions. His collaboration within Image Comics helped pave the way for independent comic producers, changing the face of the industry and creating more opportunities for alternative comic book artists.

Image Comics became the launch pad for McFarlane's high school creation: Spawn. Updated for the '90s, the first issue of Spawn was an instant success, selling 1.7 million copies.

McFarlane awarded the contract for the production of a live-action Spawn film to New Line Cinemas after they agreed to grant him control of production matters and the script. The movie, which was released in 1997, grossed $100 million. Todd McFarlane's Spawn, an animated series, debuted on HBO. Eighteen Spawn episodes aired between 1997 and 1999, earning McFarlane, the executive producer, an Emmy.

Following the success of creator-ownership comic book publishing, McFarlane held out for creative control of toy production, which he was able to achieve with the establishment of his own company, McFarlane Toys. The company has expanded far beyond Spawn characters. Their line has a wide variety of characters, including baseball, basketball and hockey figures, as well as Walking Dead and Halo characters.

He and his wife, Wanda, will celebrate their 28th anniversary this July. They have three children and live in Arizona.
Barbara J. Brock

Professor Barbara Brock joined the fabulous Recreation and Leisure Services faculty in 1987, and has truly enjoyed nearly every minute of the past 26 years teaching, researching and serving her community. She received her BS in biology from Graceland College in 1976, MS in therapeutic recreation in 1977, and then worked as an outdoor leader in Alaska, recreation supervisor in Oregon, a Graceland instructor and a recreation leader in Australia. Brock then married, completed her doctorate at Indiana University in 1987, came straight back to the Pacific Northwest, had two great kids and enjoyed a fulfilling career at EWU.

Brock believes in fun research: therapeutic horseback riding and TV-free families. Her innovative dissertation involved measuring strength and coordination in 39 physically challenged adults who rode horses for six months. It was life-changing, rewarding and still referenced today. Her research with 500 TV-free families received much attention in 2000 and the current follow-up study on the children of those families is shining light on very significant, positive benefits of reduced screen time.

Brock and her willing, wonderful students, organized, promoted and sponsored special community events for hundreds of youth three times per year. She also “stretched” topics in her classes to include acts of kindness, family rituals, time budgets, simple pleasures, no impact weeks, happiness initiatives and creative dates – “because these are quality of life topics and should matter the most to future leaders.”

Brock received the Dean’s Award for Excellence in 1997, the Century Tel Faculty Achievement Award in 2001, EWU Trustee’s Medal in 2008, and in April 2013, the Washington Recreation and Park Association Honor Fellow Award.

Joe E. Dowd

Joe Dowd received his Bachelor of Science degree in business administration in accounting from Central Washington University, his MBA in corporate finance from the University of Georgia and a PhD in accounting from the University of Texas at Austin.

Dowd’s experience includes teaching at Pennsylvania State University, the University of Texas at Austin and Central Washington University. His management and professional experience includes accounting positions with Honeywell and Boeing Co. He is also a certified public accountant, as well as a member of the American Accounting Association and the Institute of Management Accountants.

Dowd joined the College of Business & Public Administration at Eastern Washington University in 1999 as an assistant professor of accounting, and was promoted to associate professor in 2005. He was also the chapter advisor for Beta Alpha Psi, a student honorary accounting organization. He has also served on many college committees.

He is an active researcher, and has been published in several journals, including the International Journal of Managerial and Financial Accounting and the American Journal of Business Research. He also makes presentations at local, regional and national conferences. Dowd has received numerous awards from the college and university for his teaching and research.

Dowd is more than just an accountant. At age 10, he avidly pursued a variety of sports – from snow skiing and motorcross to snowmobiling and power boating. When health issues finally sidelined him from these sports, he mounted a video camera to a radio-controlled airplane and moved his adventures to the sky.

He currently lives in Edwall with two dogs, eight cats and one very patient wife.

Maria Hernandez-Peck

Maria Hernandez-Peck received her bachelor's degree from Barry University in Florida. She received her master's in social work from the University of Louisville, and her PhD from the University of Denver.

Since joining the EWU faculty in 1981, Peck’s contributions to the School of Social Work's Center for Aging Studies and the community have been continuous and exemplary. Peck is a master teacher, much loved by her students. She developed and coordinated the interdisciplinary minor in aging studies and the Palliative Care Certificate program while serving as director of the Center for Aging Studies.

Peck brought national attention to EWU as a member of the National Advisory Committee for the 1981 White House Conference on Aging. Throughout her career, she has been a scholarly and articulate voice for research and service for our aging population, including a study of retirement decisions of older farmers.

Many programs emerged because of grants she received, including the Geriatric Training Program at Elder Services of Spokane Mental Health. In 2007, she received the Excellence in Action Award from the Washington State Council on Aging. Other awards include the 2005 Leadership Award from the Washington Association of Area Agencies on Aging and Governor's Delegate to the 2005 White House Conference on Aging, as well as the 2004 Outstanding Graduate Faculty for the School of Social Work. Most recently, and most significant to the future of aging studies, is her sabbatical work with the National Indian Council on Aging. Peck also serves on the board for the National Association for Hispanic Elders.

Gail F. Hicks

Hicks received her undergraduate degree in psychology from Michigan State University in 1967. She received her master’s degree and PhD in psychology from Washington State University in the 1970s. Since starting at EWU in 1974, Hicks has been instrumental in shaping the department and university. Throughout her work in the development of programs and curriculum, she has been passionately committed to both students and diversity. She was awarded the 2007 Trustees’ Medal, the university’s highest form of recognition for faculty achievement.

Hicks served as director of the clinical concentration of EWU’s master’s program 1999-2003. She helped shape this program into the excellent training experience that it is for students today. In her roles with the clinical coordinating committee, Hicks has been an advocate and mentor for students and faculty. She has been consistently welcoming and supportive. She makes great effort to create an atmosphere of respect and empathy that allows people to thrive and grow personally and professionally.

Hicks’s commitment to women’s studies is another of her great accomplishments. She was instrumental in the development of the Women’s Studies Program and designed the psychology of women course, which is offered in the department and as a university gender and cultural diversity offering, and continues to be a favorite among students. She has been consistently active with women and gender studies and worked to maintain commitment and support for women’s issues. Gail Hicks has been a true asset to students, faculty and Eastern Washington University.
Sidney K. Kasuga received his PhD in microbiology from the University of Montana and began teaching at Eastern in 1970. During his 43 years, he has been the core of the Biology Department's health science program. He has taught many classes, including immunology, epidemiology, hematology, biology of cancer and medical microbiology. Kasuga has been the stalwart advisor to hundreds of pre-med students over the years and the major professor of many graduate students. His passion for teaching and his compassion for his students earned him the Undergraduate Faculty of the Year Award in both 2002 and 2007.

Kasuga’s research interests have focused on clinical immunology, hematopathology and infectious diseases. He has shared his expertise with the health-care community and has been deeply engaged with them. He has taught classes in conjunction with the Washington State University College of Nursing and the University of Washington School of Medicine. He has been on the staff of Deaconess Medical Center, on the board of directors of Cancer Patient Care and Inland Northwest Blood Center, member of the Tumor Board at Deaconess Medical Center and Sacred Heart Medical Center and clinical consultant for Biopol Laboratories. He has shared his life and professional career with his wife, Debbie, their daughters and sons, Jena, Jason, Stacey and Levi, and with their grandchildren, Justin, Jordan, Madison, Ashley, Winter and Ciera.

Kasuga’s contributions to the Department of Biology, Eastern Washington University and the Spokane region have been invaluable. He was recognized for these many contributions with the University Trustee’s Medal in 1985. The department and university thank him for his contributions.

William J. Kelley, formerly a researcher with Texas Transportation Institute, joined the Urban and Regional Planning Program (URP) in 1978. During his tenure, he taught in both the undergraduate and graduate programs. He also served in multiple administrative roles including chair of the department, director of the Transportation Research Center, director of the Business Resource Center and coordinator for the graduate and internship program in the URP Program.

He was active in applied research, directing many studies in transportation, land use, and community and economic development.

Kelley served on the Faculty Senate and many university committees. He also contributed to community and professional organizations. Locally, he served on the county’s Boundary Review Board, the city’s Planning Commission, Spokane’s Bicycle Advisory Board and the Transportation Improvement Board. Professionally, he was active in the American Planning Association and served multiple terms on the board of the Planning Association of Washington.

For more than 30 years, he taught the planning studio courses at the graduate and undergraduate levels. Each year, these applied courses provided research and planning services for neighborhoods, local communities and state, tribal and national agencies.

Student teams, under the direction of Kelley, won multiple state, regional and national awards for their planning efforts over the years. Kelley himself has been recognized for his contributions to planning by state and national organizations, as well as by the university, for his contributions in teaching and community service.

As he now teaches the sons and daughters of former students, he’s most proud of the collective legacy of Eastern’s contribution to planning and planning’s contribution to community.

James K. Kieswetter received a bachelor’s degree in music history and literature, and a master’s and PhD in history from the University of Colorado. He joined Eastern in 1968.

Recognized as a highly knowledgeable and no-nonsense professor, Kieswetter specialized in French and military history. He received the EWU Trustees Medal in 1982, the Burlington Northern Faculty Achievement Award in 1986 and the Department of the Army Commander’s Award for Public Service in 2004. The latter award recognized his “leadership, initiative and outstanding instruction” in the development of “moral, ethical and technically competent” officers in the Military Science Program.

Kieswetter has published two books and 145 journal, dictionary and encyclopedia articles and book reviews. In 1975, he was invited to Corpus Christi College, Cambridge University, to discuss his research on the continuity in personnel and policy between the reigns of Napoleon I and Louis XVIII.

Grants from the Ford Foundation, United States Steel Foundation, National Endowment for the Humanities, and the American Philosophical Society funded his research in the French National Archives, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs Archives, the National Library, the Ministry of War Archives and the Richelieu papers at the Sorbonne during a sabbatical from Eastern.

Kieswetter served on many Eastern councils and committees. He chaired the Eastern Friends of the Library Executive Committee and judged many National History Day competitions. He worked with the Spokane Scholars’ Foundation, led pledge-drive teams for the Friends of KSPS-TV and served on the Spokane Humane Society’s board of directors.

William R. Loendorf was a professor of engineering and design for 10 years. Previously, he was an adjunct associate professor for more than 25 years at the College of Lake County, Regis University and at the University of Wisconsin. He has facilitated a variety of both engineering and business management courses.

Additionally, Loendorf has 30 years of industrial experience as both a manager and engineer at Motorola, Sun Microsystems, Cadrexa, Delco Electronics and Unico. He was part of three startup companies, developed some of the first industrial automation systems controlled by computers, designed the first computerized automobile engine computer control system (ECM) and developed numerous embedded computerized control systems for a variety of applications.

Loendorf earned his BS in engineering science at the University of Wisconsin, MS in electrical engineering at Colorado State University, MBA at the Lake Forest Graduate School of Management and PhD in engineering management at Walden University.

Throughout his tenure at Eastern, he was very active in department, college and university committees. He served as the Faculty Organization president, chair of the Faculty Senate, chair of the Course and Program Approval Committee and co-chair of the department personnel committee. He was also among the four professors responsible for gaining state approval allowing Eastern to offer engineering degrees.

During his professional career, he published more than 45 journal and conference papers. He was the winner of the 2005 American Society for Engineering Education (ASEE) Annual Conference Best Paper Award and was nominated for other Best Paper Awards. His interests include engineering and business management, technological and engineering literacy, and improving the competitiveness of American companies.
D. Scott Melville

Scott Melville came to Eastern Washington University in 1980. He received his BS and MS degrees in physical education from Slippery Rock State College and his PhD in physical education (Motor Learning Specialization) from the University of Iowa. Having had a background as a physical education teacher in the public schools, at Eastern he taught undergraduate and graduate methods courses in elementary physical education. He also taught undergraduate and graduate motor learning/control courses and coaching education courses.

His primary area of research was in the area of teacher modeling. His 1988 publication, “The Effects of a Physical Educator's Appearance of Body Fatness on Communication of Exercise Concepts to High School Students” (Journal of Teaching in Physical Education), is considered a seminal study in the field. Many of his subsequent publications investigated the physical fitness and lifestyle practices of physical educators and pre-service teachers.

Melville published two textbooks on teaching elementary health and physical education, and co-authored one on the science of coaching tennis. As a result of his lifelong interest in poetic writings, he edited two anthologies: The Scent of These Armpits: Poetic Thoughts on Sport and Landscape Lovers, Lords of Language: Poetic Thoughts on Nature. The latter of the two reflects another of his longtime passions; it is illustrated with his egg tempera paintings.

Upon retirement, he and his wife Julie plan to move to Florida so they can be closer to family, and to enjoy year-round bicycling, swimming and kayaking. And, of course, he plans to be painting at an even more robust rate – alligators, pelicans, live oaks, swamp people and such.

Thomas W. Mullin

Thomas Mullin joined the faculty of Eastern Washington University as an assistant professor in 1991. He was promoted to associate professor in 1996 and full professor in 2003. He holds an MA in theatre and a BS in communication and theatre, from the University of Wyoming. Prior to his appointment at EWU, he served as a consultant and in a variety of professional and academic positions. Among his numerous professional and academic accomplishments are:

- Writer, producer and/or director of more than 50 theatre, film and media productions
- Actor in 16 film, television and theatre projects
- Executive producer of more than 10 program series, including all programming produced by the University of Wyoming between 1981 and 1986.

Mullin's service to the department, college and university includes 17 years on the Department Personnel and Curriculum Committees, the College Personnel Committee, the Faculty Senate, Course/ Program Approval Committee and numerous search committees for faculty and administrators.

He has made presentations to a wide range of groups, including the International Reading Association, Western Social Science Association, North American Society for Social Philosophy, Washington Alliance of Theatre Education, the Get Lit! Festival and the EWU Retirees Association.

Mullin's commitment to students is legendary. He makes himself available at night and on weekends to help with projects, troubleshoot equipment and provide make-up screenings, all to insure that each student maximizes their opportunity to succeed.

Ted Otto's 28-year career at Eastern has been one of highly effective service to the university. He has been instrumental in managing and growing the EWU Libraries, and has led EWU faculty by serving on many committees and boards, including the Academic Senate and numerous positions on the board of the United Faculty of Eastern – including several stints as its president.

After earning his Bachelor of Music from University of Wisconsin, Madison, Otto earned his Masters of Sacred Music from the Union Theological Seminary in New York. He then went on to earn his Master of Library Science from Indiana University, Bloomington, and his PhD in education from Southern Illinois University, Carbondale.

Otto joined Eastern faculty in 1985 as head of research and information services (RIS). From 1994-98, Otto was the project coordinator for the expansion and remodeling of JFK Library. His vision and planning was the cornerstone for the "physical" library we see today. Following completion of the remodeling and expansion, he assumed the duties of collection development coordinator, a post he has held since 1998.

During his tenure, Otto served on numerous councils and committees, including six terms on the Library Faculty Personnel Committee and as the Library faculty chair from 2009-13. His gracious acceptance of the interim dean of Libraries position in 2013 was instrumental in the implementation and growth of the Learning Commons. He continued to be the force behind the efficient and tactful curating of the library collections up to his retirement in June 2013.

Steven M. Simmons

A professor of computer science, Simmons earned his doctorate at University of Oregon in 1972. In 1984, he helped found the new Department of Computer Science and in the 1990s, he became active in the field of computer networks, co-founding the Terabyte Triangle connectivity project in downtown Spokane and helping to obtain worldwide fiber-optic connectivity for EWU, as well as contributing to the Eastern Washington GigaPop project for statewide network research.

Among his many his research and development efforts, Simmons worked with the EWU music department on several projects, including the Counterpoint project for web-based teaching of that subject, the MANOME project for interactive real-time music at a distance and the Avista Corporation-sponsored Virtual Possibility Network Project for Inland Northwest regional university collaboration over a dedicated high-performance fiber-optic network.

In recognition of his efforts in connectivity-related scholarship, Simmons has received the EWU Deans Award for Excellence in College of Science, Mathematics and Technology 1999; the EWU Chair's Award for Excellence in College of Science Mathematics and Technology, 1998; the 2003 TechNet Catalyst Award for Individual Innovation and the EWU Chair's Award for Excellence in Scholarship – College of Science Health and Engineering, 2009.
Faculty Emeriti Recognition

Pamela A. Stanley-Weigand

Pam Weigand completed her undergraduate in 1972 and master’s in 1977 at EWU in business education. She joined the faculty of EWU in 1983. Since 1997, she was the director of business and marketing education in the College of Business and Public Administration and just completed converting it to an online program.

Weigand received her EdD from Arizona State University. Her research, writing and speaking primarily focused on managerial communication, professional writing and computer-directed instruction. She taught 42 different classes in her 35 years as an educator in the MBA, business and marketing education and business programs.

Weigand served on the EWU Assessment Committee since its development in the mid-1980s, and conducted the first focus groups. As Assessment chair for the college since 1992, she developed their writing initiative, Teaching and Learning Committee, Assessment Committee and Winter Assessment Forums.

Weigand received numerous awards in her 30 years: Dean’s Merit Bonuses, Teacher of the Year, Outstanding Faculty Member by Phi Eta Sigma Freshman Honor Society, Outstanding Business Educator, Department Teaching Excellence Award, Washington State Business Education’s University Merit Award and Outstanding Business Educator. She has been a leader in business education, holding every executive board position in the Washington State Business Education Association and Association for Records Managers and Administrators.

William T. Trulove

Tom Trulove was hired by the Economics Department of Eastern Washington State College in the fall of 1969. He earned his PhD from the University of Oregon. With teaching and research interests in regional economic development, public finance and international trade, he participated fully in the academic life as EWSC evolved into EWU, serving as chair of the Economics Department since 1995. Always a loyal supporter of the university, Trulove received the EWU President’s Medal in 1993 and the Trustees’ Medal in 2011.

Never one to be underemployed, Trulove was elected mayor of the city of Cheney in 1978. This position led to service on numerous state and local boards and commissions, which enriched his classroom presentations, as well as opportunities for his students.

In 1986, Gov. Booth Gardner asked Trulove to serve in his administration. Accepting the opportunity required resigning as mayor and receiving an extended leave of absence from EWU. During this period, Trulove served as an energy advisor and as a Washington member of the Northwest Power Planning Council, rising to chair of that organization.

Trulove returned to EWU in 1995. In addition to his role at the university, he continued to serve at the state and local levels in a variety of positions.

By 2005, Trulove was lured back into service as an elected official, first as a member of the Cheney City Council, and then once again as mayor of Cheney in 2010 – his fourth term in the position. Continuing service as mayor, keeping in touch with former students and spending time with family will provide a fulfilling retirement from Eastern.
Trustees’ Medal Award

Dr. Jamie Manson

With an international reputation, a remarkable portfolio of peer-reviewed publications and an unequivocal love of teaching and mentoring, Dr. Jamie Manson has elevated the prestige of Eastern Washington University throughout the world and given countless students a foundation upon which to build a successful career in chemistry and biochemistry. As such, Manson has been chosen as the 2013 Trustees’ Medal Award recipient.

Manson received his Bachelor of Science in chemistry from Eastern Washington University in 1994, and his Doctor of Philosophy in the subject in 1999 from the University of Utah. Since 2003, Manson has loyally served EWU, first as an assistant professor (2003-07) and then in his current role as full professor (since 2011). During that time, he has amassed more than 50 published articles, the vast majority of which have appeared in premier, international peer-review journals such as the Journal of the American Chemical Society, Angewandte Chemie, Chemical Communications, Inorganic Chemistry and Physical Review Letters – which are among the most influential of all science journals. Four of his articles have been featured on the covers of these respected journals, and his articles have received more than 3,000 citations; indicating the scope and breadth of his influence within the worldwide chemistry community.

Combining both chemistry and physics, Manson has assembled an international network of experimental and theoretical collaborations on molecular magnetic solids, which has led to not just a global reputation in journals, but also as an invited speaker at numerous conferences and some of the world’s leading research universities. Domestically, he has lectured at Gonzaga, Purdue, Indiana University, Wake Forest, Clemson, North Carolina State University and the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Manson’s international collaboration includes research with such esteemed institutions as the High Magnetic Field Laboratory at the national research center in Dresden, Germany; Laboratoire Leon-Brillouin, Saclay, France; the Clarendon Laboratory within the Physics Department at the University of Oxford and the Materials Science Department at the University of Cambridge, both in the United Kingdom.

His international reputation and cutting-edge research has led to internal grants, as well as extremely competitive external grants from Research Corporation and the National Science Foundation, the totals of which greatly exceed $600,000. Manson’s laboratory time at multi-billion dollar research facilities such as ISIS in the UK; the Paul Scherrer Institute in Switzerland; the National High Magnetic Field Laboratory at Los Alamos, New Mexico (the world’s premier pulsed magnetic field facility); and the Advanced Photon Source (located near Chicago) bring more than a $4.5 million research value to EWU.

As highly regarded as Manson is throughout the world, his passion for teaching and mentoring students has never wavered. While instructing students in matters of chemistry and physics, Manson has shined the global spotlight on many of them – nearly a dozen undergraduates have co-authored approximately 20 of his peer-reviewed and often-cited journal articles, and at least two have had the opportunity to present their research and interact with colleagues in the UK and France under his guidance. His mentoring reach extends beyond the Cheney campus, and includes volunteering in the National Guard Youth Challenge Program and the Washington Youth Academy, an 18-month program that pairs students with mentors who help with life skills, encouragement and guidance.

Manson’s loyalty to the university exceeds expectations as well. He has served as the Chemistry Department’s library coordinator, the chair of the Department Personnel Committee, a Faculty Senator and has volunteered to serve the department on various ad hoc committees, including the student retention committee and the new science building committee, among others.

Through his research, esteemed reputation and passion for helping students succeed in the classroom and life, Manson embodies the university’s aspirations for excellence on a local, national and global scale.
Distinguished Service Awards

The Distinguished Service Awards, one for a classified staff employee and one for an administrative exempt employee, are given each year to recognize exemplary service and outstanding contributions to the university. Letters of nomination and support are reviewed by the University Medals and Awards Committee. The award includes the Distinguished Service Award medallion and a check for $1,000. These awards were presented at the University Family Thanksgiving Dinner on Nov. 16, 2012.

Diana Teague-White began her career at Eastern in 1978 as a part-time secretary in the English Department. Since 1999, she has worked in the Graduate Studies Office, where she meets with students and processes their applications to EWU’s graduate programs.

“Diana goes way above and beyond in providing service,” wrote Vice Provost Ron Dalla in his nomination letter. “Her approach to the students puts them at ease and she never rushes the conversation. The students leave with a much better understanding of what is required of them. Several of the international students have shared with me just how much they appreciate Diana’s approach in working with them.”

Those writing in support of her nomination all remarked about Diana’s ability to remember students. She frequently asks if concerns have been resolved or if a student is making progress toward finishing his or her graduate degree.

MBA Program Director Roberta Brooke wrote, “Most people do not realize the complexity of the MBA Program. It has many prerequisites and admission requirements. Keeping them all straight and not letting students fall through the cracks is an administrative accomplishment of the highest order. I think we would be challenged to find anyone who knows their job, or the inner workings of EWU, better than Diana.”

Roberta Jackson, graduate program director for the Communications Disorders Department, agrees. “Ms. Teague-White is the voice and face of EWU to the many individuals who apply for graduate school. I know that when I refer a student, she efficiently and effectively answers questions to provide functional solutions,” wrote Jackson.

“She (Diana) has an extremely strong work ethic and holds herself and others to the highest standards of professionalism in providing customer service from the simplest question to the most complex situation,” wrote Graduate Program Coordinator Robin Showalter. “Diana touches everyone as she quietly goes about providing world-class support of EWU’s Graduate Programs, just as she did when I first met her in social work 22 years ago.”

Lisa Olson has a long history with EWU, completing both her MS and BS degrees in applied psychology at the university. Since 2006, she has served as a psychological counselor and as the coordinator of outreach services for EWU’s Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS).

Robert Quackenbush, PhD, CAPS director and chief psychologist, wrote in his nomination letter, “Her title of ‘psychological counselor’ does not begin to address the breadth of her service to students and the university community. Under her direction, our Student Workshop Series now provides excellent retention resources for students who would not typically come in to CAPS for individual treatment.”

Quackenbush adds, “Ms. Olson has played major roles in Eastern’s commitment to end violence against women, assisting with the Department of Justice Grant, the Violence Against Women Task Force and subsequently the Gender Violence Prevention task force. Her work with the Green Dot Program and First Responders training for faculty/staff, has allowed additional expression of these values within a model program in the service of students. Lisa has forged strong relations with faculty and staff from untold departments, ranging from Athletics to Women’s Studies.”

Karen Wanjico, EWU Violence Prevention Advocate describes Lisa as “a person of integrity who cares about the campus community” and as someone who is “reliable, caring and supportive, a hard worker who does what she says she will do.”

Because Lisa’s clients cannot write letters of support for her due to confidentiality concerns, Miriam Berkman, PhD, CAPS director of training, speaks for them. “As Lisa’s supervisor, I saw her work first hand. Lisa provides a calm, hopeful environment for her clients, inspiring trust and a sense of safety. This is especially important as it allows her clients, often for the first time, to reveal to someone else their deepest fears and doubts that kept them from fully achieving their goals. Then with Lisa’s clear, practical help they start the process to psychological health and greater academic and professional success.”
2012-2013 Frances B. Huston Medallion Awards

The Frances B. Huston Medallion Award was established in 1998 by a gift from Mary Ann Nelson, professor of English emerita, as a tribute to Huston’s lifelong commitment to education and a generosity to students that was quiet, but ongoing. The medallion award program recognizes outstanding graduates and reflects Huston’s compassion and respect for what education can do for an individual and the community. The recipients of this award will have established themselves as exceptionally capable individuals in both academic and extracurricular activities. The faculty and administration of Eastern Washington University acknowledge their great pride in the accomplishments of these students during their college experience, and expect even greater accomplishments in the years that lie ahead.

This event provides an opportunity for celebration, gratitude and reflection. In the midst of our celebration, we ask that you take a moment of silence to acknowledge the service, compassion and dedication of our faculty and staff members who are not with us today.

— Rex Fuller, PhD and Stacey Morgan Foster, JD
Co-Chairs, Commencement
Congratulations Class of 2013!

Years ago, you set a goal—a really big goal—and you did it! You’ve gone from student to graduate, and you’ve joined a global family of more than 100,000 Eastern Washington University alumni.

That is truly awesome.

This is no small thing, by the way. After all, life didn’t stop for classes or reading assignments. It didn’t stop for internships, the friendships you made, more reading assignments, the pressure of finals week or anything else.

It took years of dedication and commitment to make this happen. The EWU family is proud of you, and we hope you’re proud of yourself, too.

Whether you’re taking a little breather right now to spend time with family and friends or you’re heading straight into the job market or to graduate school, know that your EWU Alumni Association is here to help you reach all of your future goals.

Meet your Alumni Association at alumni.ewu.edu

no matter where your journey takes you, you’re an 4life
